Nelsons Ridge is a residential subdivision developed by Delfin Lend Lease at the new suburb of Pemulwuy in western Sydney. Sturt Noble Associates carried out design documentation for two linked parks which combine to form a kilometre long green space through the centre of the subdivision.

With a budget of over $3.5 million the design team created an important new regional open space facility.

Dirrabari Reserve provides an additional playground and picnic area located adjacent to new tennis courts. Providing traditional play equipment the playground is surrounded by a mini cycle path for young children. The path is set out with road markings and signs to encourage awareness of road rules.

Nelson Square overlooks a water feature with shallow steps providing seating along its edge. A large amphitheatre and pavilion provide opportunities for market stalls and community activities. On the opposite side of the lake a large play area is located near a shelter with seating and BBQ facilities for picnics. Activities for older children and a half court for teenagers are located in separate zones.
